DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

The drawings are objected to because the invention is not adequately illustrated and there is excessive shading in Figures 3-7. The examiner suggests adding a figure that clearly illustrates the mechanical configuration; for example, a cut-away view of the device in Figures 1 or 2, clearly showing all claimed parts. Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as “amended.” If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either “Replacement Sheet” or “New Sheet” pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3671

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 4, 9, 11 and 17 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Linz (U.S. Patent 3,923,412).

Linz discloses a soil compacting device having an upper mass having a drive (not shown) and a plurality of lower masses (Figure 5, for example) coupled to the upper mass for oscillatory movement. Each lower mass has a soil contact plate (6) and vibration exciter (15).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3, 5-7, 10 and 12-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Linz, as applied above, and further in view of Official notice.

Phase adjustment devices are common in soil compacting devices. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used a phase adjustment device with Linz in order to suit a variety of applications.

Given the inclusion of a phase adjustment device, the recitations regarding forces would inherently be met. Further, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have configured the forces as claimed in order to control compacting as desired.

Art Unit: 3671

Individual control of vibration exciters is well known. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have configured Linz in this manner in order to suit a variety of applications. Similarly, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have controlled as recited in claims 13-15.

Regarding claim 16, it is well known to configure compacting devices to be hand guided or remote controlled in order to ease use thereof. For this reason, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have configured Linz as claimed.
